"Time Works Changes"

The truth of the above is plain to all who are in the habit of keeping track of our doings.

The Time Has Come.

Many occasions arise at this season of the year for a visit to a first class jeweler. Wedding invitations call for appropriate gifts. Then there are anniversary and birthday presents to be bought.

THE PETRIFIED WOMAN.

Spectators Say it is Genuine Beyond All Doubt,

PHYSICIANS OF SAME OPINION.

This Remarkable Specimen Should Be Seen by Every Man, Woman and Child in Our City.

It is refreshing, to say the least, to feel that once in a while a meritorious exhibit comes along. That such is the case with the "petrified woman exhibit," there can be no doubt by this time. Many of our citizens have been in, all being well pleased, pronouncing it wonderful and well worth seeing. Special invitations have been kindly extended to our physicians to call and examine the remarkable specimen. Receptions are held daily from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m. at the room next to Hotel Clegg.

THE WAY OF IT.

Vacant Houses Don't have Time to Cool off in Greensboro.

It has been said that a house doesn't have time to cool off in Greensboro when vacated by a tenant. Recently, a man wanting to move here from another city had to wait a month for a new building to be completed. While the owner of the new house was moving, another family were coming right into the house vacated by him, and the man from a distance was moving into the house vacated by this family—all moving the same day, almost pushing each other out.

This morning Mrs. J. Sandford Clark had her household goods moved from the residence occupied by her on Bain street, and this afternoon Mr. J. E. Marsh, of the firm of Clary & Co., moved in.

The demand for dwellings here keeps up and it looks like a good field to invest money in houses to rent.

Mrs. Clark is moving to Roanoke, Va., whither her husband, the watchmaker, went some months ago. Their neighbors regret to see them go, but wish for them prosperity in their new home.

PUBLIC LIBRARY MEETING.

Everybody Invited to be Present Next Tuesday Night.

Let everybody attend the library meeting in the courthouse next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Greensboro needs a good library, and must have it or fall behind other towns in the State. Now is the time to begin to work for it, as an opportunity is now offered to secure a good home for the library at small cost. Let everybody interested in the welfare of Greensboro and its higher interests turn out Tuesday evening at the ringing of the bell.

Knights Templar, Attention.

As the Right Eminent Grand Commander of Knights Templar of North Carolina, Sir Knight, J.H. Hackburn, will pay an official visit to Ivanhoe Commandery, No. 8, on Wednesday, December 8th, at 7:30 o'clock, p. m., the regular conclave for December will be postponed until that time.

All Sir Knights will take due notice of the above, and govern themselves accordingly. JAS. D. GLENN,
Eminent Commander.

Funeral of Mr. Smith.

The funeral of Flavius B. Smith, who was killed on the Atlantic & Danville railroad, as printed in yesterday's paper, will take place from the First Presbyterian church here tomorrow. The remains will arrive this evening at 6:30 via the Southern accompanied by Mrs. Smith. Glenn Smith and J. A. and Mrs. Clinard, of Charlotte, are here. Mrs. Clinard is a sister of the deceased.

Justice Field's Retirement.

Washington, Dec. 1—Justice Field's retirement from the Supreme Court, of which he gave official notice to the President last April, took place today. There was no formality attendant upon it. The justice was not present in the court room and as he had not sat with the court on any day since the opening day of the term, the proceedings did not differ in any respect from those of ordinary days.

If Justice Field's term had continued until next Tuesday he would have had 44 years of continuous service. Under the law he will draw full salary until his death.

TRIBUTE TO DR. PEACOCK.

A Student, a Scholar and a Man of Affairs.

Greensboro people know what Dr. Peacock is, but it is always interesting to hear what strangers think of home folks and so the following well merited tribute in this morning's News and Observer is copied:

We note among the visitors attending conference President Dred Peacock, of the Greensboro Female College. We are glad to learn that this old institution has such a good attendance—the largest for years past. Since President Peacock assumed the presidency, no session has ever opened with less than a hundred boarding pupils. In every department of the college there are signs of progress. In addition to an increase in the number of the faculty, there has been a decided strengthening of the work by improvements in the way of laboratories, apparatus and libraries. The owners of the college have been exceedingly liberal in their appropriations for the above purpose, and Greensboro Female College today is one of the best equipped institutions in the South. The people show their appreciation of this fact by giving it the most liberal patronage it has dad in several years.

Dr. Peacock is not only a student and a scholar, but he is as well a man of affairs; broad gauged, level-headed, and discreet; conservatively progressive; a man of great industry and with correct ideals. He is the youngest college president in the State, and there is not one in or out of the State who has wrought more successfully.

MR. WADSWORTH'S RAILROAD.

A Loan of a Million and a Quarter Secured.

Mr. John C. Wadsworth, of Concord, was first president of the Concord & Aberdeen Railroad Company, but at a meeting of the directors some months ago he was made secretary and general manager, which position he now holds.

"I haven't heard much lately about your railroad," said an Observer representative to Mr. Wadsworth, yesterday. "Going to build it?"

"Sure," replied Secretary and General Manager Wadsworth. "We will break dirt on the actual construction of the road within 30 days. See what I tell you—within 30 days we will be building the road."

Everything is now in shape, Mr. Wadsworth says, the main thing, the money question, having recently been settled. His company has secured a loan of $1,250,000 from a Philadelphia trust and loan company, and there is now nothing in the way to prevent the rapid completion of the road from Concord through to Aberdeen.—Charlotte Observer.

Educational Qualification.

There is no doubt a strong pressure for a law requiring and prescribing an educational qualification for voters This would disfranchise (that is until they studied and learned to read) 67,000 negroes and 48,000 whites. There are 336,000 negro and 242,000 white illiterates. It is safe to say one-fourth are voters.

The Making of Toothsome Tidbits.

Below Zero.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec, 1—Of the north-western stations of the government weather bureau, the warmest one at 7 o'clock tonight, was that at Duluth, which records zero. At the same hour it was four below zero in St. Paul, six below in Huron, ten below at Winnipeg, twelve below at Bismarck, Battleford and Minnedosa, 18 below at Williston, 20 below at Medicine Hat and 30 below at Havre.

A Severe Reprimand.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Secretary Alger has prepared a severe reprimand in the case of Captain Lovering and sumbitted it to the President this afternoon for his approval before promulgating it to the army. It may be made public late this afternoon.

MARTIAL LAW IN PRAGUE.

Old Glory Hoisted Over The American Consulate.

ENGINE EXPLODES ON THE TRACK

Kansas Has a Slight Earthquake.--A Railway Postal Clerk Arrested on Charge of Robbing the Mails.

By Cable to THE TELEGRAM.

Prague, Dec. 2—In consequence of the continued disorder in this city yesterday and Tuesday, martial law has been proclaimed and the strongest measures will be taken to prevent a recurrence of the rioting which has so disturbed the city. During yesterday's disturbances the American flag was hoisted over the United States consulate.

ENGINE EXPLODES.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Titusville, Pa, Dec. 2—A dummy engine on the new street car line of the Titusville Traction Company exploded today near East Titusville. Four men were seriously injured, two of them fatally.

KANSAS SHAKES.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Wichita, Kan., Dec. 2—A slight earthquake shock startled the residents of Wichita early this morning.

ROBBED THE MAILS.

By Wire To THE TELEGRAM.

Pittsburg, Dec. 2—C. W. Merritt, of Mansfield, Ohio, was arrested here today charged with robbing the mails. He was formerly a railway postal clerk on the Fort Wayne railroad between Crestline and Pittsburg. Many complaints of losses caused an investigation. Two decoy letters with marked money were fonnd in his pocket when he was arrested.

THE GALE CONTINUES.

Channel Steamers Cannot Land Their Passengers.

By Cable to THE TELEGRAM.

London, Dec. 2—A heavy northerly gale is sweeping the English channel to the danger of shipping and the entire suspension of the passenger service between Dover and Calais. The steamers are unable to land passengers.

MAJOR HANDY ILL.

For Hours He is Unconscious and May Not Recover.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—It is reported today that Major Moses P. Handy, the special commissioner of the United States to the Paris Exposition, is seriously ill and his recovery is extremely doubtful. For hours together he is unconscious.

BOAT CAPSIZES.

And Ten of Her Crew are Drowned and Four Rescued.

By Cable to THE TELEGRAM.

Margate, Eng., Dec. 2—A volunteer life boat belonging here capsized in a rough sea this morning off Nayland Rock. The boat was manned by a crew of fourteen, ten of whom were drowned and four rescued.

Fast Torpedo Boat.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Annapolis, Dec. 2.—It is reported today that the trial trip of the torpedo boat Winslow was highly successful. For two consecutive hours she maintained a speed of twenty-four and a half knots per hour.

Killed the Bear.

The Asheville Gazette gives the following account of a bear fight:

Two sons of Henry Bias, who lives on Swannanoa, yesterday treed three black bears near Gudger's bridge seven miles east of the city. As they were fighting the cubs the old bear appeared on the scene and was killed while in the defense of her young. Her body was brought to the city and is on exhibition at the store of Johnston & McDowell, on South Main street. The two cubs made their escape.

INHUMAN FIENDS.

Spirited Away Hastily to Prevent a Lynching.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 2.—The two negroes who tried to rob and burn to death Marie Higgins, the handsome daughter of former Councilman Higgins, on last Tuesday night, were arraigned today and hurried off under a heavy guard for fear that they would be lynched.

The girl was saved by her brother who heard her screams while she was bound with burning rags saturated with turpentine. She is improving today.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

Country Folks will Aid the Mail Carriers by Nailing up Boxes.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Acting Postmaster General Perry S. Heath has issued the following circular regarding the rural postal free delivery:

The ultimate success of the experiment of free delivery of mail, which is now being tried by Congress in 50 rural districts of the United States, will depend largely upon the promptness with which the carriers can make their deliveries to the patrons on their routes. This will be greatly facilitated, and the chances of the permanency increased, if those desiring to take advantage of rural free delivery will erect suitable boxes by the roadside in which carriers may deposit mails as they pass and from which they may collect the mails intended for transmission.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

Decrease Accounted for Largely By the Union Pacific Payment.

Washington, Dec. 1—The December statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business November 30, 1897, the public debt, less cash in the Treasury, amounted to $1,009,226,465,a decrease since October 30 of $11-338,125. This decrease is accounted for by an increase in the cash due to the deposit of an installment of the proceeds of the government's interests in the Union Pacific Railroad. But for this transaction the cash in the Treasury would have been$771,450 less than last month.

Rescued From an Eagle.

Black Water, Mo., Dec. 1.—A bald eagle was captured near here yesterday by Henry Kella, who rescued the 4-year-old son of his brother Theodore from the bird's talons. The child was in the yard near the house when the eagle swooped down on him, but the boy was too heavy for the bird.

Kella rushed to his nephew's assistance. The bird's talons had become entangled in the child's clothing, and it struggled desperately to rise at Kella's approach. Kella threw his coat over the eagle's head and effected its capture. The bird was brought here, and is on exhibition.

Countess Weds Farmer's Son.

Janesville, Wis., Dec. 1.—Miss Alice Starrett, who claims the title of a Danish Countess, was secretly married this morning to Robert C. Tetzlaff, of Spring Lake, Wis. The bridegroom is a farmer's son, has been attending a school of telegraphy here, and has been doing chores for his board.

Miss Starrett's grandmother was married to Count Ferslew, of Denmark, who came here to serve during the war. Later he deserted Miss Ferslew and returned to Denmark. On his death the titles reverted to Miss Starrett, and she was received in court a few months ago.

Politics and School.

Col. Olds writes that a Forsyth teacher named Graham writes the State Superintendent of Public Instruction: "My certificate as teacher has been revoked simply because I am a democrat." The superintendent replies that he refers the case to the county board of education and says that when it passes upon it if Graham is not satisfied he will himself fully investigate it. He concludes: "We must not let politics come into our schools."

Lindsay Burke, whose tragic death at the hands of a tribe of cannibal dwarfs in the Congo Free State in Africa, was recently detailed, was a son of Maj. M. A. Burke, the treasurer of the State of Louisiana, who decamped in 1885 with over $300,000 of the funds which had been entrusted to his care.

Gen. Weyler was banqueted here, his birthplace, last evening. Great enthusiasm was manifested.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION

Outlined By a Politician Close To McKinley.

AN ULTIMATUM TO SPAIN.

Currency Reform, Hawaiian Annexation, Postal Savings Banks and Other Topics Touched On.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Washington, Dec. 2—A prominent department official and good politician who is in close personal relations with the President thinks he can outline the features of the administrations policy which will be presented to Congress in the Presidents proclamation and upon which the administration will be willing to go before the people in the Congressional election of 1898.

He says these features are: First, Hawaiian annexation; second, an ultimatum to spain giving her another year in which to pacify Cuba and restore normal conditions on the island; if it is not done in that time the United States will be bound to interfere for the protection of our business interests; third, postal savings banks; fourth, a beginning must be made in the direction of currency reform by a law holding all redeemed greenbacks in the treasury unless they are drawn out by a deposit of gold; fifth, the maintainence of the civil service system against all attacks in Congress.

This is a pretty large scheme, but the administration thinks it has elements of strength and popularity and can be made the basis of the republican platform next year.

MINISTER WHITE'S INTERVIEW.

Baron Von Bulow Gives Assurance of Germany's Good Will.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—The United States ambassador, Andrew D. White, in his interview yesterday with the German minister of foreign affairs, Baron Von Bulow, received emphatic assurances, couched in friendly terms, of Germany's moderate intentions in regard to demanding of Hayti an indemnity for the illegal imprisonment of Herr Emil Lueders, a German subject. Baron Von Bulow assured Mr. White of Germany's good will and respect for American susceptibility, which caused the German government to reduce its claim for indemnity to $20,000.

Mr. White explained that the United States cruiser Marblehead was going to Port au Prince, Hayti, solely to protect American interests.

At the Throttle with a Broken Leg.

St. Louis, Dec. 1.—A locomotive engineer's pluck took him to St. Mary's Hospital this morning. For thirty miles he stood at the throttle of his engine with a broken leg. The game engineer is A. C. Chapman, an employee of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad. His train was a trifle late this morning.

Just outside of Alton, thirty miles from here, in Illinois, the reverse lever flew suddenly back and struck him on the leg, fracturing it. Chapman decided to complete the trip rather than return to Alton and add to the train's delay. He bore the pain without a murmur until he pulled the train into the round house at the foot of Humboldt street and there he succumbed. He was unconscious when placed in the ambulance that bore him to the hospital.

Can't Get Affidavits.

A Scotland Neck special to the Charlotte Observer says:

Senator Marion Butler has had his private secretary at Rocky Mount a day or two this week trying to get up counter affidavits to those sent out from that place concerning Butler's ugly utterances in his speech there. But the good people of Rocky Mount stick to it, and say that Butler said what the Argonaut reported. One strong Populist was asked to swear to the contrary, but he would not do it.

Pat Walsh Elected.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 1.—Ex-United States Senator Patrick Walsh, the Citizens' candidate, was today elected mayor of Augusta over Wm. Dunbar and Daniel Kerr, by a majority of 824. Mr. Dunber was, like Mr. Walsh, brought into the race by popular sentiment in favor of municipal reform, while Mr. Kerr was supported by the present city administration.

Facts Worth Studying.

If the Southern Stock-Mutual pays no larger dividends than the 20 per cent. now paid, and the business increases during the next seven years in the same ratio it has increased during the last three years, the actual saving for the ten years to policy-holders in North and South Carolina will be $194,822.00, and to the policy-holders in Greensboro alone, $26,237.00. Besides this the Company's assets (reinsurance reserve and surplus) represented by still larger figures will be kept at home and invested in the state. What better investment can the public make than by upholding an institution tike this?

PROF. PECK TO THE RESCUE.

A paper that the writer read with some surprise, and certainly with advantage, was "A Great National Newspaper" by Harry Thurston Peck, of Columbia College. The conclusions reached therein and the tribute payed to American journalism were all the more striking because contributed by one in no way connected with journalism, Mr. Peck being professor of Latin in Columbia College.

As to the well known charge of inaccuracy Professor Peck says: "As a matter of fact the desire for accuracy, in the staff of any reputable newspaper, is as intense as is the desire for the news itself. No reporter who makes serious mistakes can hold his place. No correspondent would be tolerated who should supply false information." This is rather startling to those who have been wont to regard the newspaper as thoroughly unreliable. It will be noted that the writer is speaking of reputable newspapers only. There are some that have a dubious title to the adjective.

With regard to the charge of sensationalism Prof. Peck reaches the conclusion that it is much more apparent than real; that it exists more in scareheads than in the bodies of the articles. In support of this view he quotes Dr. W. Robertson Nicall, the distinguished British critic, who, he declares, was much pleased with a certain New York journal that even Americans regard as extreme.

When he comes to speak of the tendency to deal in personalities, the writer gives an instance that few, perhaps, have heard of before going to show that there are strict limits. He says: "There was, for instance, a president, now dead, who was elected some years ago after a most exciting and bitter fight. It was known, during this campaign, to every party editor in the country that his private life had been one of sensuality, that it was rich in possibilities of scandal. But with all this material for his political annihilation ready to hand, not even the bitterest partisan among his opponents ever used it."

Those who imagine that journalists print everything they know will be interested to learn that "From the president down, therefore, statesmen talk most unreservedly with the representatives of the great newspapers. By explaining to them the real drift of important measures, by giving them the inner history of certain diplomatic moves, they often prevent that sort of criticism which, through misinformation, is frequently injurious to public policy and may in the conduct of foreign affairs be even prejudicial to the national interests. And if any professional journalist has ever violated such a confidence as this, if he has ever shown himself unworthy of the trust that one reposes in a man of horor, or if he has ever let the instincts of a newsgather master his good faith as a man and his patriotism as an American, then the present writer, at least, has never heard of it."

From which it will appear that even in American journalism there is still something for which to be thankful.

The Dreyfus affair is a sad comment upon the jurisprudence of a country that claims to be the most civilized in the world. Tried and convicted in secret, now that it seems almost certain another than he is guilty there seems no way to remedy the matter. Old Habeas Corpus, Sic Semper Tyrannis and E Pluribus Unum are not bad fellows to have around after all.

The committee appointed to look into the matter of purchasing an armor plate plant, report that the plant will cost too much. That is a wise decision when the great Dingley revenue provider is leaving us eight million deeper in the hole each month. It should be remembered however that Carnegie and Cramp have not worked for nothing up to the present.

The meeting of those interested in a public library on next Tuesday night should be kept in mind. Every citizen should determine that he will not leave the matter entirely to his neighbor, but will prove himself as patriotic as any man. It is a matter in which all are equally interested; all should show equal interest by attending the meeting.

Martin Thorn seems to share the general feeling of satisfaction with which the verdict in his case was received. Possibly he has grown philosophic and regards the electric chair as preferable after all to Mrs. Nack.

Among all the suggestion as to how to help the Dingley law raise revenue it is strange that a derrick should have escaped the acumen of solicitous republican statesmen.

One new feature that should be introduced in the up-to-date murder trial is that at the end of his charge to the jury the judge should say "continued in our next."

The Progressive Farmer says its associate editor is purple. Another proof that reforming must be a terrible strain on the anatomy.

It may be remarked that the lofty prominence of Editor Butler as a reformer has not yet secured free postage for the Caucasian.

With Croker, Sheehan and Hanna all ill at once the political boss would seem to have fallen upon evil days and hostile bacteria.

The French chamber will now proceed to show the Reichsrath that even in a legislative row Vienna is quite provincial.

Even the needs of the Klondyke can not quite counteract the bearish effect of the new Luetgert trial on sausage.

It is safe to say that when Marcus A. Hanna has the grip President William McKinley's bones ache.

This is to Certify that a few years since, while living in a malarial district, I suffered dreadfully with chills, which it seemed impossible to break. A friend urged me to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. I did so, and by the use of a few bottles they were entirely broken broken, and I have not been troubled with them since. I also found it an excellent nervine.

Land Sale

By virtue of a mortgage deed executed by John Bethel and wife Fannie Bethel, on the 28th day of October, 1896, to J. W. Kerr, (since dead) and in consequence of a failure to pay the debt secured in said mortgage, I will sell to the highest bidder, for cash, at the court house door in Greensboro, N. C., on Saturday, December 4th, 1897, the lands described in said mortgage, butted and bounded as follows:

Beginning on northeast corner of street on Main street leading to Greensboro, thence north 60 degrees east along westerly side of said street 10 1-3 poles, thence north 87 degrees west 14 1-2 poles, thence south 30 degrees west 10 1-6 poles to north side of said street, thence 87 degrees east with said street 14 poles to the beginning, containing one acre, more or less. There is reserved from this sale the lot out of this boundary heretofore sold to Frank Fields.

The above mortgage is recorded in book 102, page 707, in the office of the register of deeds, Nov. 4, 1897.

LAURA KERR, Executrix of J. W. Kerr, deceased.

Lowell and the Boy.

An author whose home was in a country town had planned a day's outing in Boston. He intended to transact a little business, see a few sights and crown the day by attending a reception given to James Russell Lowell. He had made up his mind, after some consideration, to take his little son with him for an early glimpse of distinguished society. Of course the small boy, who had never before been in the city, was delighted, and in due time the pair set out.

On their return the other members of the family clustered about them, and as they unwound the little fellow from his heavy furs and mufflers he was asked eagerly, "What did you see in Boston?"

"We thaw," came the answer in a breathless burst, "the anaconda and the fat woman and the Living Herculethe."

They had been to a museum of curiosities, as well as to an author's reception, and—according to youthful rules of precedence—Mr. Lowell, naturally ranked a long way after this renowned trio.

Nevertheless the boy bore away two distinct memories of the poet, though in the first it is probable that the Living Hercules had his share, having doubtless suggested the topic of conversation, which was physical strength.

Mr Lowell had narrated to his open mouthed, small auditor an anecdote of a prizefighter who, in danger of being run over in a crowded London thoroughfare, had knocked down and killed a horse with a blow between the eyes.

His other recollections are of his own pleased embarrassment and the insistent cordiality of the poet—so often spoken of as overpunctilious and fastidious—who would shake hands with him, extending for the purpose a hand faultlessly gloved in gray kid, which clasped without reluctance the child's hesitating, fuzzy paw, clad in a woolen mitten, sticky with recent molasses candy —Youth's Companion.

Tennyson and the Peerage.

Three times the baronetcy was offered to Tennyson, and as many times he refused it. When, therefore, one day in 1883, Mr Gladstone said to the laureate's son that for the sake of literature he wished to offer his father the higher distinction of a barony, there was grave doubt about its acceptance. The only difficulty which the prime minister thought insurmountable was the possible insistence by Tennyson on his right to wear his wide awake in the house of lords. Tennyson was so well beyond the mere flattery of an offer of the peerage that he took the friendly urgence of Mr Gladstone with great calmness, and at first was not to be moved from his determination to remain plain Mr Tennyson to the end of his days.

He was finally persuaded, however, that as the foremost representative of literature in England he ought not to put aside a distinction which would mark the formal recognition of the place and function of literature in the life of a great people. "I cannot but be touched," he wrote to Mr Gladstone, "by the friendliness of your desire that this mark of distinction should be conferred on myself, and I rejoice that you, who have shown such true devotion to literature by pursuing it in the midst of what seems to most of us overwhelming and all absorbing business, should be the first thus publicly to proclaim the position which literature ought to hold in the world's work."—Hamilton W Mabie in Atlantic.

Fiction's Unjust Treatment of the Rich.

A grievance that has been treated very injudiciously in many works of fiction is the relation of the rich to the poor. Absolutely false ideas as to how the rich get their wealth and what they do with it when they get it have been persistently floated by novelists, for whom (as for the journalist) a millionaire is always fair game. It is not worth while to expend any sympathy upon the millionaires in this matter, as they can struggle along under a considerable weight of vituperation, but the rest of us cannot afford to be put continually in a false attitude toward wealth. Hatred or envy of the rich is not a pleasant companion for our leisure hours, and the poorer we are the less pleasant company it is likely to be. It interferes with our working to the best advantage and cuts us off from opportunities of accumulating the very wealth that might ease our pains.—Droch in Ladies' Home Journal.

Night Photography of the Future.

These night pictures suggest all sorts of valuable and interesting possibilities. We may before long be able to photograph the crowds and scenes around the bulletin boards on election night, the frantic enthusiasm of a great outdoor political meeting and other great gatherings. Many memorable scenes, by the use of the camera at night, can be made a part of permanent history in all their details that now can only be generalized by the rapid pen of the artist. No one who has ever observed the streets of a city on a stormy night can have failed to be impressed with the unique pictures presented by the shiny pavements, the dully glowing lamps and the ever passing gleams and flashes that come from the street cars and the rumbling cabs. James B. Carrington in Scribner's.

Up to Date.

"Mamma," said little Freddy excitedly, "the ferryboat we were on almost ran into another ferryboat while crossing the river."

"Did it?" asked mamma anxiously.

"Yes, indeed. I'm sure there would have been a collision if the other boat hadn't back pedaled."—Harper's Bazar.

Novel Fishing.

It is said that the Dutch have an ingenious way of attracting fish. They fill a bottle partly full of water and then add wiggling fish and bugs, and after that sink it near where the fishhook is floating. When the fish in the stream see it, they gather around it to learn the meaning and are thus easily caught.

Fannie's Triumph.

Dainty little Fannie Grayson clapped her hands in ecstasy and danced and sang as if she had been enchanted. Then she ran to her sister Lillian and hugged her and said:

"Oh, I'm so happy!"

"What's happened?" Lillian asked.

"Why, didn't you see Tom Taddington when he went away just now?" Fannie replied.

"Yes, what of him?"

'He asked me to be his wife. Oh, Lil, just feel how my heart flutters."

Lillian Grayson was tall and willowy, and she had a good sized muscle. Holding her sweet, tender sister off at arm's length, she exclaimed:

"Well, I don't see why you should go crazy over that. You surely didn't accept? Remember that we come of an old family. Our grandfather made enough money in the logging business to be able to retire when he was 47 years old, while Tom Taddington's mother had to teach school for a living until she got married. There is a social gulf between our families that never can be bridged."

"Oh, bother your gulfs and bridges," cried Fannie. "I told Tom that I could not think of being his wife, and he started away swearing that he would either kill himself or propose to Clara Coulton. Think of it! If he kills himself for love of me, all the papers will want my picture and print columns and columns about it, or if he goes and marries Clara see what fun it'll be to tell the other girls how I drove him to it. Oh, I wish I were a man for about half an hour. If I were, I'd celebrate by going out and smoking the biggest and strongest cigar I could get hold of." —Cleveland Leader

Logging Railroads.

Time was when the logs were drawn over roads of snow and ice on the great rude sledges to the banks of some river, drawn out on the ice and left until the springtime, when they would be floated down stream to the mills. In some places the system is still in vogue, but in large measure all this has been changed. Logging railroads have been built into the forests, enabling the owners of pine lands to reach forests far from any stream. Spurs from the main branch of the road are built out like the fingers on an enormous hand clutching at the defenseless pines. After a tortuous passage through the paths of the woods the log is loaded upon the skidway—an incline leading down to the railway track. The skids are long, tough poles of tamarack or some hard wood, placed about 20 feet apart.

The logs easily roll down on these skids and are drawn by horses up on the short, wide freight cars, and as fast as one car is loaded another takes its place, until a train of perhaps 30 cars is made up. The road is a very rough one, and the trains are supplied with the best of airbrakes, for the grades are steep, and great care must be exercised or the trains will break in two and disaster and possibly loss of life will follow if a part of one of the trains breaks away and starts down the grade. "Mountain climbers," the powerful engines in use in mining regions, are a part of the equipment of a logging railroad.—"The Story of a Pine Board," by W. S. Harwood, in St. Nicholas.

How to Take a Bath.

"I cannot understand why it is," says a physician, "that when I order a cold tub bath for my patients, the temperature to be at 65 or 70 degrees, they never can understand how they are to do it. 'I suppose I shall let the water stand overnight,' says one. But it is not necessary to let the water stand overnight. We are living under civilized conditions, and the very simple plan of turning on the hot water faucet for a few minutes will moderate the water to exactly the proper temperature. Some people do not understand taking a cold bath anyway. I don't wonder they take cold. To bathe properly, when the water is in the tub turn down the nightclothes and bathe the face and neck. Then, stepping into the tub, kneel on one knee and with the sponge throw the water first over one shoulder and then over the other down the spine. That causes the reaction which makes the body warm. Quickly sponge over the rest of the body, make a few motions forward in the water, as if swimming, and then jump out into the bedroom slippers. It need not take more than a moment. Such a bath is very beneficial to many thin blooded people." —New York Times.

A Cure For Indolence.

Sugar will keep you from getting lazy. At least that is what a medical authority says who has been making some recent interesting experiments on the source of muscular exertion. He administered a liquid containing 30 grains of sugar to a person who had heavy daily work to do and who was kept in ignorance of the nature of the experiment being tried upon him. On the days when the sugar was omitted it was observed that the laborer was unable to accomplish so much work and that he had less ease in doing it than on the days when he ate the sugar. It is said by some that a person who habitually eats sweets has great muscular endurance.—New York Tribune.

Swiss Glaciers.

Who owns the glaciers and moraines of Switzerland—the state, the cantons or the townships? As no grass grows on them no one seems heretofore to have cared who owns them, but by a recent decision in the Canton Valais they belong to the communities within whose limits they lie.

Lavender is still used in English linen closets, but the supply is threatened with extinction. The growers in the village of Hitchin, one of the chief centers of the lavender industry, assert that owing to a succession of bad seasons the plant is dying out there, and that, moreover, they cannot compete with foreign imitations of lavender water.

General News in a Nutshell.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles made an official inspection of the defenses of Philadelphia.

An appropriation of $60,000 was made by the city to the New York board of health to pay for the board of poor consumptives in institutions having arrangements for the isolation of the disease.

Women Cannot Practice Law in Paris.

Paris, Dec. 1.—The Court of Appeals today rendered a decision against Mlle. Chauvin being admitted to the bar of Paris. Her application last Wednesday excited considerable interest, and today the court was packed with people anxious to hear the result. Mlle. Chauvin is handsome, tall, well made and has dark eyes and a fine complexion. She was attired today in a neat black satin dress and made an excellent impression. She replied to the procurator-general's objections in a clever speech, arguing that in the absence of an explicit text against women advocates in the French code, she was entitled to claim admission to the bar. Her manner and diction were faultless and her address was quite free from declamation.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the liver and kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle at C. E. Holton's drug store.

WILL HELP DEFEAT HANNA.

Announcement as to Course of Ohio Democrats in Legislature.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 1—J. C. L. Pugh, democratic state senator from this county, said today that he would very gladly vote for any republican that might be named by the anti-Hanna republicans in the legislature to defeat Senator Hanna.

He said he had had correspondence with nearly all the democratic members of the general assembly and excepting only Representative Heyde of Holmes county, he had found that they all feel the same way in the matter. Mr. Pugh said he expected that the democratic caucus would nominate some republican suggested by the anti Hanna republicans.

Weyler Snubs an Official.

Madrid, Dec. 1—A telegram from Palma announces that General Weyler has paid a visit to the captain-general of the Balearic Isles in consequence of an order from that functionary. The visit lasted less than a minute. General Weyler only said: "I have the honor to present myself to your Excellency" and then withdrew. The captain-general went to return the visit soon afterward, but Weyler refused to receive him.

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for coughs, colds and consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

Arbitration:

The hearing and determination of a cause between parties in controversy, by a person or persons chosen by the parties.

This may be done by one person, but it is usual to choose two or three, called Arbitrators; or for each party to choose one and these to name a third, who is called the umpire.

Their determination is called the award.

R. W. Brooks returned last night from the rabbit and bird hunting expedition at Ore Hill. When he left they had killed sixty rabbits and forty birds. He left Andrew after a rabbit, but it is thought the chase will be over in time for he and his brother T. T. to come home this evening.

As another instance of the value of good roads take this fact: A tract of land near High Point, on the route of a recently graded and macadamized road, was sold the other day for about four hundred dollars more than the owner held it at before the road improvement. The moral is plain to every thinking and observant man. Good roads will accomplish more in making North Carolina property valuable than any other one thing. This fact is becoming more apparent to our people.

A Name for the Deer.

In yesterday's Telegram you probably read about the little fawn at Garland Daniel's. Now Mr. Daniel offers a fine box of Huyler's candy to the girl or an air gun to the boy who selects the best name for the little pet, the names to be handed in by 12 o'clock, noon, on Saturday, December 4th.

The names will be considered and a selection made by a jury of three ladies. If you haven't seen the little deer, go and see it, its a beauty. Enter the contest and see who can select the prettiest and most appropriate name.

A Ninety-Seven-Year-Old Visitor.

Mr. Summit, of King's Mountain, who was born in 1800, was in Charlotte yesterday, going about making purchases. He was accompanied by a neighbor aged 76 years, and they were as lively as boys. Mr. Summit does not look anything like a 97-year-old man. One would judge him to be about 60, and he says he feels about that age.—Charlotte Observer.

The New Cafe.

The new Central Cafe, next to Ward's drug store, is being neatly fitted up. The best class of trade only will be catered to, the manager says. The cafe will open for business at noon of Saturday. The cafe will make a specialty of serving dainty lunches for ladies.

Our Prescription Business
Is Growing Very Fast.
WHY?

Because we use only the Purest Drugs and Chemicals in filling them, and employ Experienced Pharmacist only behind our counter—two requisites necessary to insure accuracy and guard against any possibility of mistakes. Physicians and the public generally are finding this out, hence the large increase in our prescription file. Remember the place.
